11 months for bizarre kidnapping scheme

PHILADELPHIA. A woman was sentenced to 11 months in prison on Thursday for a kidnapping plot to extort money from her husband.

Yudeka Valdez, 35, pleaded guilty in January to attempted interference with commerce by extortion. Valdez enlisted the help of two men, who turned out to be an undercover DEA agent and DEA informant, to kidnap her and her husband because she claimed her husband was an alleged drug dealer who did not give her enough money for living expenses. SEPTA taps firm for fare revamp

CENTER CITY. A SEPTA board committee yesterday OK'd a five-year contract with an Ambler firm to oversee installation of the transit agency's fare collection technology overhaul.

LTK Engineering Services received the $9 million contract in the latest step taken by SEPTA to transform from a 20th century fare system into a cutting-edge system that will radically change the way many commuters pay for their rides.

A final vote on the contract will take place next Thursday by the agency's full governing body. METRO

Early summer school dismissal

PHILADELPHIA. City schools' Summer Learning and More program will be closed Friday due to excessive heat after students were dismissed early on Thursday. ▶ "Widespread haze" enveloped Center City's skyline this week and will remain through Sunday, according to the National Weather Service.

City melting into weekend

The thermometer's mercury will climb above 100 Friday afternoon, capping a suffocating heat wave that began Tuesday and won't waver until Sunday night. The high is expected to hit 102 degrees followed by a high of 99 Saturday. Both days will be hotter than Thursday, if you thought that was hot. METRO

Family sues Philly PD after son left in coma

Kahlif Snowden beaten, Tasered by cops during Feb. 18 incident with few details, lawsuit claims ◐ As Kahlif now incapacitated, his father says beating still unexplained ◐ Deputy mayor calls incident drug-related

On Feb. 18, Kahlif Snowden visited his old neighborhood and was supposed to go to a niece's birthday party. Instead, Snowden was severely beaten and Tasered by Philadelphia police officers, according to a civil complaint filed Wednesday in Common Pleas Court.

The complaint, filed on behalf of Snowden's father, John, alleges that officers tried to stop Kahlif near Indiana Avenue and Gransback Street for unknown reasons when the 25-year-old ran.

Officers caught up with Snowden, who offered no resistance, and proceeded to kick, punch, slap and use a Taser on him even after he lay motionless on the ground, according to eyewitnesses.

As a result of the beating, Snowden temporarily stopped breathing, causing massive brain damage and is incapacitated, the complaint alleges. He now resides in a Wyncote nursing home.

Deputy Mayor for Public Safety Everett Gillison said Snowden was arrested for a narcotics violation, but swallowed the bag and "became violently ill."

"As far as I can tell, there is no internal investigation," he said.

John Snowden said his son — who had a lengthy arrest sheet and has pleaded guilty to drug possession, aggravated assault and other charges — did not own a gun and did not have drugs on him at the time.

"I would like to see them lose their jobs and I would like to see them charged criminally in a criminal court because it was unnecessary to beat and then Tase him," Snowden said in an interview.

"A violent person? He was never violent. He didn't have drugs in his possession or in his system."
JOHN SNOWDEN

Few details

Snowden was never charged with anything related to the incident, according to online court records, and his lawyers claim the police files contain very little information. "I wouldn't expect that a simple Taser would do what occurred here," said attorney Larry Coben. The complaint seeks in excess of $50,000. METRO/SDL

▶ Sensible shoes?

In yet another highly scientific poll, GQ magazine last week ranked Philadelphia the sixth worst-dressed city in the nation, citing mullets, ironed jeans and goatees as sartorial culprits.

"I definitely disagree," said Kevin Parker, CEO of Philadelphia Fashion Week. "We have such a great impact on the fashion scene, with designers and models going on to influence the industry in New York and L.A., and I don't know why we don't get the respect we deserve."

Of course, influence on the global fashion scene hardly seems to be a consideration for the pollsters, as international runway capital Manhattan ranked even worse than Philadelphia, clocking in at No. 5. ● METRO

Finale to final frontier for shuttle

Space shuttle Atlantis arrived safely at Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla., yesterday morning. Driver allegedly kills NJ boy, arrested

CAMDEN COUNTY. An 8-year-old boy has died following a hit-and-run accident Wednesday night in Lindenwold, officials said.

Authorities allege that Michael Finkelman, 57, of Pine Hill Borough, was driving near the intersection of White Horse Pike and Elm Avenue in Lindenwold on Wednesday night as the boy and his family walked to a PATCO station after spending the day at Clementon Park. The boy, whose name has not been released, was hit as he crossed the street.

Finkelman allegedly fled the scene, but another motorist followed him and reported his license plate number to police. He was arrested late Wednesday and is charged with leaving the scene of a serious crash. ● METRO/SDL

Jobs suffer from end of shuttle era

Atlantis ended the U.S. space shuttle's 30-year 135-mission lifespan with a predawn landing in Cape Canaveral, Fla., on Thursday, bringing with it two sonic booms and the demise of one of the region's biggest employers.

About 9,000 people living near the Kennedy Space Center who work for National Aeronautics and Space Administration contractors will lose their jobs.

"We're all 54 years old, and we should be able to relax, and instead we're all starting over," said Tish Lawing, whose husband works for a company that helps remove shuttle waste and whose father worked in the space center's launch-control center. "This is going to be a ghost town."

Employment in the region is at its lowest since 2000, even after four consecutive months of statewide job gains.

"It affects everything," said Pat Bell, 61, owner of a local in-home elder-care company. BLOOMBERG

Blasted off

Titusville is so steeped in the U.S. space program that its countywide telephone area code was changed to 321, the last numbers of a launch countdown.

John Edwards owes $2M, federal audit determines

WASHINGTON. The Federal Election Commission approved a final audit on Thursday that concludes former presidential candidate John Edwards' campaign owes the government more than $2 million.

The report found John Edwards for President got matching funds in excess of his entitlement as a candidate, misstated its cash-on-hand balance by nearly $100,000, failed to itemize loan repayments of more than $4 million and stale-dated at least 128 checks worth $141,808.

The FEC voted 6-0 to approve the June 23 memorandum from its chief compliance officer and audit division, which said the Edwards campaign owed $2,278,315. REUTERS

Americans: Rule space

NEW YORK. Most Americans still think their country should play a dominant role in space exploration, a new poll showed on Thursday as the shuttle program came to an end. The national survey released by CNN confirmed, however, enthusiasm about the space race dropped considerably since the early 1960s and the run-up to the Apollo Moon landings. REUTERS

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

TAKE TWO ASPIRIN, RUN FOR OFFICE

The Debt Ceiling Death Star is slowly blocking out the sun, great herds of jobless citizens are migrating like caribou across the states, no one knows where Casey Anthony is and yet certain factions in D.C. have worked themselves into a frenzy this week over Michele Bachmann's headaches.

Seriously. The world-rattling question of the hour: Can she be an effective president if migraines occasionally lay her low?

This debate pushes aside other considerations like, oh, say ... does she have enough experience in economics, governance and foreign affairs? But why should we trouble ourselves with such niggling details when we have something sexy to contemplate like a skull-cracking mal de tete. For heaven's sake, consider the endlessly entertaining possibilities:

"Madam President! Iran has launched missiles. The entire region is in an uproar!"

"Shut up, Smithers. Bring me a bowl of aspirin, some milk and a spoon."

Or ...

"Madam President, the markets are in free fall. We're on the verge of a depression!"

"For crying out loud, didn't you see that the blinds were drawn?"

Michele Bachmann undeniably brings out strong emotions. People who like her, really like her; people who don't would swim to the nearest island in the middle of a hurricane rather than even utter the words "President Bachmann." (As an aside, considering how close Hillary Clinton came to being the first female nominee for the Democrats, can you just imagine the headache she'd get if Bachmann somehow pulled off that trick on the Republican side?)

CNN = POLITICS

DOUGLAS GRAHAM/ROLL CALL

But like her or not, it seems an unworthy concern for a great nation — this idea that we would effectively disqualify a candidate over a medical tendency which has quite clearly not significantly impeded her progress or capabilities so far. She says her headaches "will not affect my ability to serve as commander in chief." Even Mitt Romney, an opponent for the nomination who disagrees with Bachmann on many issues, says he believes her headaches are "in no way an impediment" to her future plans. Mind you, he himself would like to be an impediment, but that's another matter.

Many presidents have overcome a wide variety of physical, emotional and psychological challenges to serve well. And come to think of it, if anyone running for the office does not suffer severe headaches, I have to wonder if they even know what they are in for.

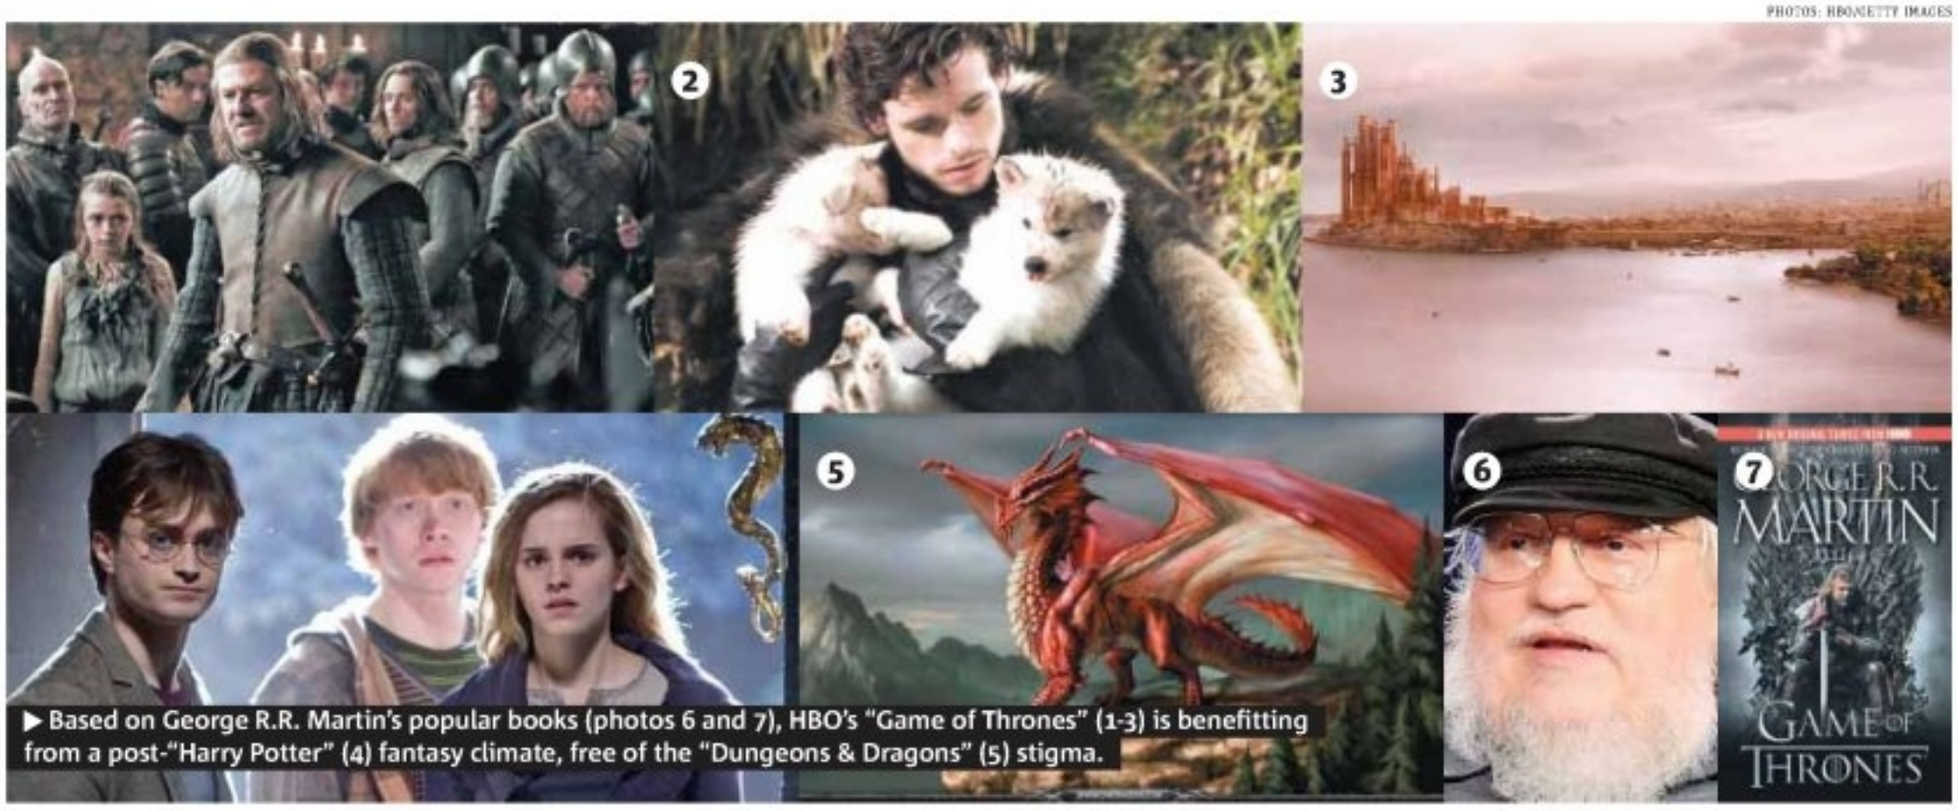
How dragon became a buzzword

Previously associated only with dice-rolling basement-dwellers, the word 'fantasy' alone was enough to earn proponents a wedgie But the genre is now capturing a more mainstream audience — and a corresponding cash flow, too

PHOTOS: HBO/GETTY IMAGES



▶ Based on George R.R. Martin's popular books (photos 6 and 7), HBO's "Game of Thrones" (1-3) is benefitting from a post-"Harry Potter" (4) fantasy climate, free of the "Dungeons & Dragons" (5) stigma.

Within the course of a single generation, one of the most denigrated cultural institutions has risen to the top of the popularity hierarchy, influencing a new era of TV, cinema and literature.

We speak, of course, of fantasy.

If, in early 1997, you had predicted the growth of the maligned genre on the back of a bespectacled British wizard, you probably would have been stuffed into a locker faster than you could not say Voldemort. Yet "Harry Potter" stands as the improbable face of a brand worth a net $4 billion worldwide, establishing his creator, J.K. Rowling, as the first — and only — billionaire writer and firmly legitimizing practices and standards ranging from cosplay (that'd be organized dress-up, for those of you who have never done locker time) to a general acceptance of fantasy fiction.

Quoted

"College-age people flock to the movies with wands and robes in an attempt to recapture the past."

BRAD RICCA

According to Brad Ricca, a professor at Case Western Reserve University and author of the forthcoming book "Super Boys," this "subtle but important shift in popular culture" can be explained as a reaction to an increasingly chaotic present. "College-age people who grew up reading 'Harry' flock to the movies with wands and robes in an attempt to recapture the past," he says.

That's good news for George R.R. Martin. The Hollywood screenwriter-turned-fantasist wrote a series of novels that — set in a medieval era on some imaginary, magic-infused continent — for years languished only in the deepest recesses of nerddom. All that has changed, however, with HBO's TV adaptation of his seminal work. "Game of Thrones" has inspired a new appreciation for his escapist oeuvre at a time when it seems — impending debt crisis, promise of European collapse, depressing summer TV lineup — the whole world is coming to pieces.

"In watching these shows," Ricca says, "we may just be acknowledging the importance and romance of the imaginative past as it affects us in times of uncertain future."

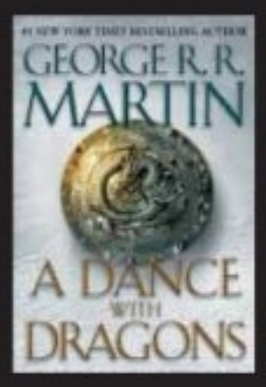
Best-seller



On the books

Boosted by the success of HBO's "Game of Thrones," the fifth book in Martin's "A Song of Ice and Fire" series — "A Dance with Dragons," released on July 12 — quickly rose to the top of the charts, becoming 2011's fastest-selling work of fiction. The six-year wait between publication of "Dragons" and Martin's last "Song" entry, "A Feast for Crows," had upset plenty of fans, some of whom created comprehensive online communities criticizing the author and offering various (conspiracy) theories for the delay. Nonetheless, it appears that many readers are still enamored. The hefty "Dragons" — which clocks in at 1,000-plus pages — sold 298,000 copies in its first day on shelves.

▶ Justin Timberlake and Mila Kunis star in "Friends with Benefits," in theaters Friday.

'Benefits' of having a good script

'Friends' is better than that other film about the same thing Kunis is excellent Timberlake, not so much

'Friends with Benefits'
Director: Will Gluck
Starring: Justin Timberlake, Mila Kunis, Patricia Clarkson
Rated: R
Grade: ●●●○○

In the inevitable comparison between "Friends with Benefits" and January's "No Strings Attached," the newer film, starring Justin Timberlake and Mila Kunis, comes out on top. The comedy is sharper and the pace brisker. And while Timberlake is alarmingly limited as an actor, he's vastly preferable to Ashton Kutcher. Kunis does the heavy lifting to make up for her partner's blandness, and she nearly runs away with the movie. The only real fault is an emotional storyline about Timberlake's character's father and Alzheimer's, which grinds the movie to a halt. ● METRO

From average citizen to 'CAPTAIN AMERICA'

After this weekend, the low-key Chris Evans is going to be a comic-book movie star

Chris Evans knows his life is changing, and he's been trying to prepare for it. With the release of "Captain America: The First Avenger," the Boston native is experiencing a new level of visibility, with his face on posters, billboards and toys around the world.

"I've just got to get through this week. That's what I've been telling myself," Evans says. "Press with studio audiences, red carpets, cameras, when there's a lot of people — I just don't do well. I don't know what it is, I feel very self-conscious."

From what we've seen, he doesn't give himself enough credit. Metro sat down with the charming and affable Evans for a candid chat.

Quoted

"I love being part of an ensemble. If I had my way, I'd only do ensemble movies. I love having a group and a team. It's just a more fun experience for me when there's a bunch of us to share it with."
CHRIS EVANS

Is it weird to have the movie opening the same weekend as Comic-Con?

If the fan reaction is good, it'll be great. If the fan reaction's not good, it could be a wildfire of disaster. You never know with these things. You never know what they're going to like. Who knows? Who knows? Who knows? They're so picky, and you just want to make sure they're happy, because without them, we don't make these movies.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

▶ "Captain America" opens Friday.

Q&A

You played a great parody of a conceited movie star in "Scott Pilgrim vs. the World." What do you do to make sure that you never become like that yourself?

▶ [Laughs] That's a good question. I've got a great group of friends and family. I know it's a cliche answer, but it's true. My friends and family are just fantastic. They're all back in Boston, and they all just keep you grounded.

You should be OK as long as you don't say anything really inflammatory about them in the press.

Exactly. "F— geeks! Go get a f—ing life, nerds!" Let's not print that.

You're playing Captain America again in "The Avengers," which is currently in production. How is it reprising the role so quickly?

I mean, it is what it is, and I obviously would've liked more of a break, but no such luck. So you know, you deal with it. There are certain things that you struggle with, and then you have to stop yourself and go, "Wait a minute, but Chris, this really is such an insignificant obstacle, let's not make a meal out of it."

And now you're part of an ensemble, with Robert Downey Jr. as Iron Man, Chris Hemsworth as Thor, Mark Ruffalo as the Hulk ...

I love being part of an ensemble. If I had my way, I'd only do ensemble movies. I love having a group and a team. It's just a more fun experience for me when there's a bunch of us to share it with.

You've mentioned that Robert Downey Jr. has been giving you lots of advice.

He's the best, man. He's given me a few pieces of wisdom. I've talked to him about stress and insecurity and the stuff that I struggle with when it comes to doing interviews and dealing with celebrity, and he said, "Look Chris, the way you cope with this is by talking about it. The healthiest thing you can do is bring it to the surface. Don't try to deal with it on your own." He's got a very healthy sense of wisdom about him. He's been through a lot.

On the horizon

Do you have a sense of what you'll be looking for next?

You don't want to limit yourself. It always comes down to directors for me. Whether it's big or small, or comedy or action or drama, those categories are all second to the director. If you don't have a good director, you don't have a good movie. So if all of a sudden a great director asks me to go play some hero in a war movie, I may play it even if it's similar. Because at the end of the day the goal is to make good movies, and good movies come from good directors.

@itsmelaeve and @1919 respond to Snooki being on "DWTS," @happywithmyname lets me know she likes Courtney Love, @CassieD_Naija and @glomanno share their theories on the J.Lo divorce, and @myonlywayisup missed my big head on Monday (just a vacation day, folks!).

▶ @itsmelaeve pretty soon I won't be able to watch anything on tv for fear of jersey shore cast members. Boo. Dwts is boring now anyway.

▶ @1919 Oh, are they changing their name to "Grinding with the Sluts"? ZING

▶ @happywithmy name: I appreciate #CourtneyLove in the metro today! Can you make it a daily occurrence?

▶ @CassieD_Naija So not surprised Jlo wants to split! She married the same man who built a gym INSIDE the house so that his ex wife stay home!

▶ @glomanno so that's why she took the American idol gig... I knew she had money problems...

▶ @myonlywayisup I might come out as a stalker but @dorothy atmetro, why aren't you in metro today!!!

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

The Anthony and Lopez divorce drama continues

Jennifer Lopez knows a great way to get over divorce: Fly to the Ukraine to perform for some millionaire's lavish wedding ceremony (I'd probably just shove my face with ice cream and not shower for a few months but to each her own, I guess). "Are you happy?" Lopez asked the 500 guests at the lavish bash, for which she was paid $1 million. "I am happy, because I am here with you today!" Friends of the singer say she isn't just putting on a brave face: "She is jumping back into work and being a mom with all her energy and she is really excited. She feels like she has grown leaps and bounds," a source says.

Meanwhile, Us Weekly reports that the couple almost split up in 2009 due to Marc Anthony hooking up with a flight attendant he met aboard a private plane. "Jennifer was going to leave him then, but Marc begged her to stay. They went to marriage counseling and she decided to give it another shot. He was someone she truly loved," says a source.

Ukrainian weddings! Flings with stewardesses on private planes! What thrilling, bizarre lives these two lead. And here my idea of exciting is a night at Dave & Busters.

Zach Braff: Not gay, but still likes stereotypes

Zach Braff is working quickly to clear things up after a hacker posted a notice on his website announcing that the former "Scrubs" star is gay. In the bogus statement, Braff thanked his nearest and dearest for keeping the secret for so long. "My old website got hacked," Braff said in a statement to TMZ. "Someone issued a 'coming out' statement on my behalf, I'm still straight and in love with my girlfriend. But not too straight; I still love musicals, brunch and 'Doogie Howser.'"

If Braff were gay, he'd have a better suit.

Talking points

A small wedding for McCartney

While Paul McCartney is excited to tie the knot with fiancee Nancy Shevell, don't expect a lavish event from the former Beatle, according to the Daily Telegraph. "Paul loves Nancy very much, but does not want a big wedding," a source says. The couple will reportedly wed in a small, private ceremony in London before flying to Shevell's native New York, where they will hold a small party for her family and friends. It's a far cry from McCartney's wedding to Heather Mills on the grounds of a castle, which featured a five-minute fireworks display.

Eric Dane heads to rehab

"Grey's Anatomy" star Eric Dane, who is expecting his second child with wife Rebecca Gayheart, quietly checked himself into rehab last month as a "preventative measure" to deal with a dependency on painkillers, according to Star magazine. "Eric felt things spiraling out of control and decided he needed to get some help," a source says. The actor's rep confirms the rehab stint, saying in a statement that Dane "voluntarily checked himself into a treatment facility to help him get off of pain medication that he was prescribed for a sports injury that he suffered over the recent hiatus. He reports back to work next week. Business as usual."

Six men and a queen

1: Oh, hell. As if we ladies need another reason to love Ryan Gosling, here he is with his adorable, mohawked mutt George on "Late Night With Jimmy Fallon" at Rockefeller Center on Wednesday.

2: Usher performs (is that a ray gun?) at the HTC Status Social launch event at Paramount Studios on Tuesday in Hollywood.

3: Forget Demi Moore — how is it that Slash has looked exactly the same for the past two decades? Here the guitarist kicks off the U.K. leg of his tour on Wednesday in Birmingham, U.K.

4: Kate Middleton this, Kate Middleton that. Let's hear it for the real foxy woman of the house: Queen Elizabeth II. Here she is, looking splendid in lavender at the National Memorial Arboretum on Wednesday in Alrewas, Staffordshire.

5: Corey Taylor, the lead singer of Slipknot, signs copies of his new book "The Seven Deadly Sins" in West Hollywood, Calif., on Wednesday.

6: Bono performs at Meadowlands Stadium on Wednesday in East Rutherford, N.J.

Authors Sarah Huck and Jaimee Young on their guide to campfire cooking 'It's really not that complicated'

Summer weather practically beckons you to take camping trips, and the next time you find yourself famished in the forest, Sarah Huck and Jaimee Young have some ideas for you.

The former cookie decorators, now cookbook authors, have penned an ode to the great outdoors with their new book, "Campfire Cookery." They insist that their gourmet recipes, like Stone-Seared Cornish Game Hens with Bombay Spice and Grilled Peach-Amaretto Skillet Cakes, can be easily tackled on your next excursion into the wilderness.

"People have been cooking over fire forever and ever, and it's really not that complicated," Huck says.

"Once you get how to control the heat of the fire, you can do anything that you would normally do in your home kitchen," Young adds. "You just have to understand how to control the heat, and we give the best directions we can give about it."

But their book is more than just recipes: it's a collection of recommendations for how to best spend your time while camping. Huck and Young offer instructions on what to pack and how to start a fire, as well as tips on stargazing, telling ghost stories and picking wild berries.

"The fanciful elements, to me, are the parts that make the book feel really special," Huck says. "It's the part that really sparks that sense of adventure that you feel when you're camping: I think that we tried to pull out all these activities that captured that experience."

TARA DONNE

Weekend recipe

▶ Gather 'round for this dish.

Caramelized Tomato Tarte Tatin a la Clark

"Our friend, the gifted food scribe Melissa Clark, inspired this dish," Huck and Young write in their book. "She prepares a similar version in the oven and tops it with a puff pastry crust. Alas, fire cookery has its boundaries; and unfortunately, puff pastry pushes them. Here, we've substituted her brilliant pie crust recipe, which is equally divine. When summer comes, and ripe, sweet tomatoes drip from the vine, do not overlook this dish. It is a worthy use for nature's bounty." Visit us online at www.metro.us for the recipe.

Taxes pay for our society

RE: "ACT NOW, OR HOLD OUR PEACE": Man, I'm sick of the libertarian "taxation is theft" meme! Not according to the Constitution you all hold so infallible it isn't. How about no more roads, airports, schools, libraries, post offices, state and national parks or protection by police or fire departments?
JEFFREY KILBURN, VIA E-MAIL

Taxes are the fees we pay for civilization; and from the number of things falling apart, it's obvious they've been cut way too far over the past 30 years.

Journalism is in big trouble

The media has failed us. When Murdoch's News Corp./FOX News is considered a credible source of information, then you know the profession of journalism requires an enema. ANTHONY P. JOHNSON, PHILADELPHIA

Who is at fault for our wars?

Why is the U.S. bankrupt? We've spent $20 billion a month for 10 years on wars, and not one of the 537 imbeciles in Washington who holds federal elective office can connect the dots. Neither can 95 percent of the U.S. public, apparently.

Vegetarianism under the knife

RE: "HOW DO YOUR MORALS TASTE?": Lisa Drapkin writes "people like you" — is that like "those people"? Or are you referring to people not like you? What makes vegetarians like you so righteous?

You have the right to choose not to eat meat and I respect that, whether I agree with you or not. I have the same right to choose to eat meat. Therefore, please respect my right to do so, whether you agree or not.

Security flaws laid bare

RE: "NAKED BODIES NIXED FROM TSA SCANNING": New TSA software might be no improvement over what so many travelers find objectionable. If the new set-up simply hides details, the danger of the original images being misused still exists. After a rushed introduction, scanner safety is still in doubt. And given that the scans can't detect all explosives hidden on or inside the body of a determined attacker, they don't work. It makes more sense to focus on known leads than to scan the entire traveling public.

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Something material that starts out to be rather small could quickly transform itself into being enormous. This might involve a purchase or an investment of some kind that you make.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Something over which you have no control could turn out to be much better than you dared hope. Do what you can to make the most of it, the moment you hear about it.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Lady Luck must like you, because she's arranging for you to take part in something special. It's an arrangement that is already producing positive results.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Don't hesitate to join any type of collective endeavor, whether it's just getting involved with friends for an outing or investing in a joint undertaking. You'll be fortunate in such activities.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Act immediately on any bright ideas you get regarding ways to further your ambitions and aspirations. Your perceptions will be worthy of action.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Regardless of what the odds are, think "win" on your participation in a competitive involvement. It doesn't matter if what you are doing is a sport, a romance or a business deal.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Don't hesitate to move things around a bit if you think it would help better your lot in life. Any changes you make at this time could have good results.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Because your thoughts are likely to be focused on what you can do to please others, companions will find you a most delightful person to be around and do things with.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. It pays to be observant about economic and/or career opportunities. Something quite substantial could come out of a participation in one or both of these areas.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Don't hesitate to speak up and suggest something fun to do over the weekend. Chances are your ideas will be better than most, and will be ones that everyone would enjoy doing.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Normally most financial tips you get aren't that spectacular, but someone might share some information with you that few are privy to. At the least, it's worthy of investigation.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. It isn't unusual for you to sometimes enjoy involvements that are more verbal than physical, so getting together with friends for a long-winded chat could be just the ticket.

Locked out, but looking ahead

NFL lockout isn't over • Owners ratify deal, players reject it • Either way, it's time to look at free agency

The NFL lockout was supposed to end Thursday.

It didn't.

It still could this weekend, if the players and owners can work out their differences. Thirty-one of 32 owners ratified a deal Thursday, but the players rejected the conditions of that deal. So the NFL remains in a holding pattern — and so does the business of signing free agents.

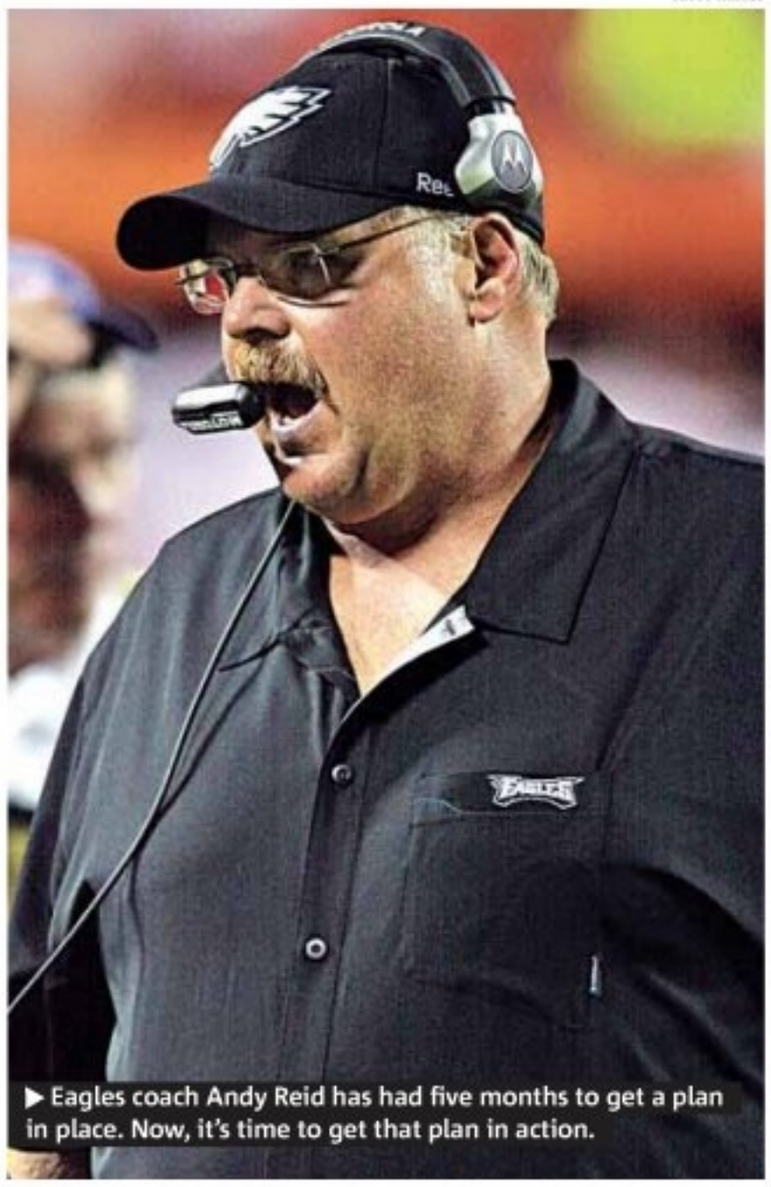
When the two sides finally come to an agreement, there is going to be a feeding frenzy. Teams won't have time to sit back and plot their moves. That all should have been done in the past five months. No, it's time to strike before the iron gets ice cold.

Eagles owner Jeffrey Lurie has already gone on record saying that his team plans to make a splash.

"We've been ready to roll for a while," Lurie said. "We've got a great plan in place, and you never know what you can accomplish, but I know we're going to be both aggressive and hopefully make the right decisions." MIKE GREGER

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Eagles coach Andy Reid has had five months to get a plan in place. Now, it's time to get that plan in action.

Position: Defensive end

THE DEAL:

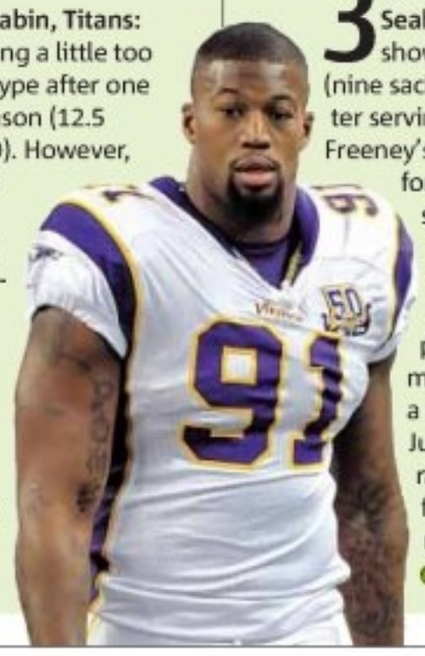
Cornerback is the biggest area of concern for new defensive coordinator Juan Castillo, right? Well, the Eagles don't have anyone on their current roster capable of starting opposite Asante Samuel. Even so, the biggest need for this team lies along the defensive line.

ANALYSIS:

With 2010 first-rounder Brandon Graham likely to miss significant time, they certainly need a legit pass-rusher to take some pressure of Trent Cole. Top three targets:

1 Ray Edwards, Vikings: He's going to want a very lucrative long-term deal, but the 26-year-old certainly has shown he deserves it. He's combined for 16.5 sacks in the past two seasons. Plus, left end is his natural position.

2 Jason Babin, Titans: Garnering a little too much hype after one breakout season (12.5 sacks in 2010). However, the theory is that the 31-year-old can produce if reunited with defensive line coach Jim Washburn, who coached him last year in Tennessee.



3 Raheem Brock, Seahawks: Has shown flashes (nine sacks in '10) after serving as Dwight Freeney's understudy for eight seasons in Indy. Problem is, he's 33 and would probably be more suited in a rotation with Juqua Parker, rather than a flat-out replacement. METRO

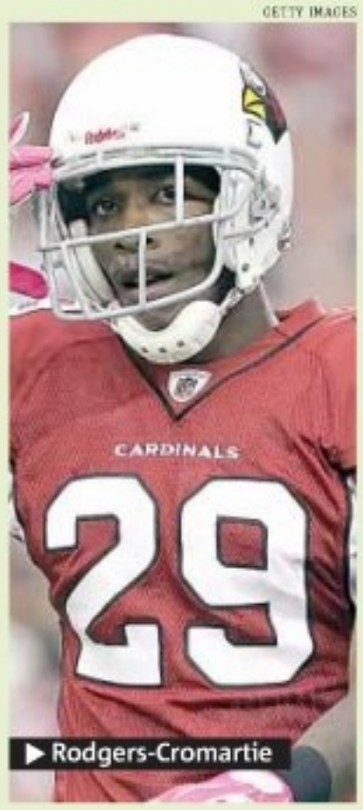
Position: Cornerback

THE DEAL:

We know who the fans want: Nnamdi Asomugha. While nothing the Eagles do would totally shock us, this would kind of shock us. He's going to want between $12 million to $18 million per year, and there's strong speculation that his wish is to remain in Oakland. There are better options:

1 Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie, Cardinals: Trading QB Kevin Kolb for Cromartie — and at least a third-round draft pick — would be the easiest path to obtain an instant starter at right cornerback. Cromartie has the size and speed to be an elite player. He just needs some motivation.

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Rodgers-Cromartie

2 Johnathan Joseph, Bengals: At 27, he's one of the most underrated corners in the entire NFL. But his salary demands might be a little more than he's worth simply due to the talent drop-off at this position.

3 Ike Taylor, Steelers: He'd be the cheapest option and would be a good fit if the Eagles switch to a more zone-centered scheme. The 31-year-old would also bring a wealth of experience having won two Super Bowl titles.

Safety valve?

The Eagles also face some really big questions at the safety spot.

Strong safety
If Quintin Mikell isn't re-signed, expect second-year guy Kurt Coleman to step right in and start.

Free safety
Nate Allen ruptured his Achilles tendon last season, but he's expected to be ready for training camp.

Free agents?
If they wanted to hit the market, they could shell out big cash and upgrade with Darren Sharper at free safety. Then, there's always the option of bringing in a veteran like Lawyer Milloy or ex-Eagle Michael Lewis at strong safety.

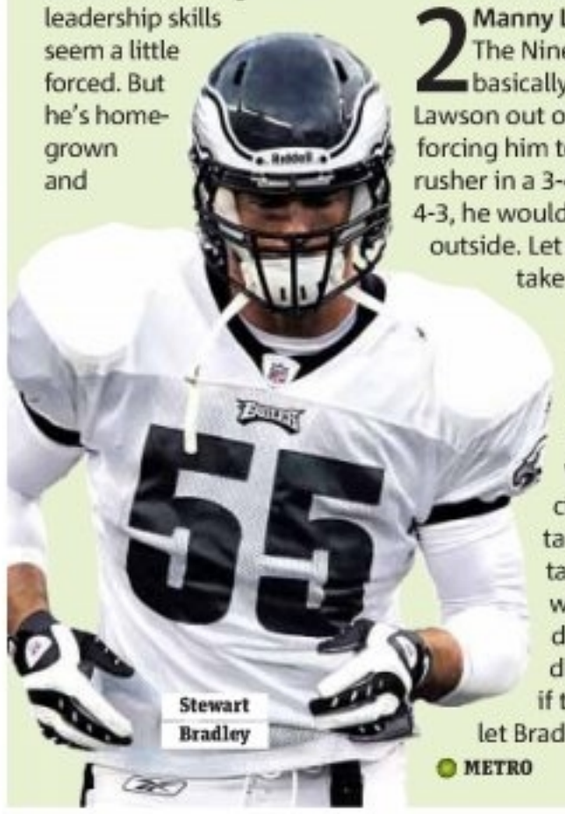
Position: Linebacker

THE DEAL:

Why are we even addressing this position at all? The Eagles, under head coach Andy Reid, have proven they don't value the linebacker position. Still, they are in dire need of someone, anyone that can play.

Lawson

1 Stewart Bradley, Eagles: Personally, we think Bradley is injury-prone and severely overrated. He is terrible in coverage and his leadership skills seem a little forced. But he's home-grown and should be cheap. That's the Eagles way, right?



Stewart Bradley

2 Manny Lawson, 49ers: The Niners have basically been playing Lawson out of position by forcing him to be a pass-rusher in a 3-4 scheme. In a 4-3, he would thrive on the outside. Let Jamar Chaney take the middle.

3 Stephen Tulloch, Titans: Another Jim Washburn disciple. Had 160 tackles for the Titans last season while holding down the middle. Solid option if they decide to let Bradley walk.

METRO

What else to watch for

The Eagles are also in the market for a backup running back and quarterback, if Kolb is indeed traded. Here are some of the best options:

Young

- RB Reggie Bush
  The Saints drafted his replacement, Mark Ingram, so Bush is available. Could form a real-life "shake and bake" if paired with shifty starter LeSean McCoy.
- RB Jerome Harrison
  Averaged 6.0 yards per carry in limited role last season with the Eagles. May be looking to find somewhere he can start.
- QB Vince Young
  An athletic freak, with off-the-field issues, trying to resurrect his career ... sure sounds like a perfect fit. And he's a proven winner, holding a 30-17 NFL record.
- QB Matt Hasselbeck
  Would he be OK with being a backup? Probably not. But the 35-year-old doesn't have many options, plus he worked with Andy Reid as a rookie in Green Bay.

Rule 5 players contributing for NL East leaders Martinez, Herndon, Victorino plucked from other teams Hit or miss on shaky prospects

JOSEPH KACZMAREK/METRO

▶ Herndon

It's not surprising that the Phillies added slick-fielding Michael Martinez to their roster as a Rule 5 player. It is surprising that three Rule 5 players are on the roster.

The Phillies took a Rule 5 flyer on Shane Victorino in 2005 and he's turned into a two-time All-Star. Last season, GM Ruben Amaro plucked David Herndon from the Angels. Herndon had never pitched above the Double-A level.

"I was really excited to come to the Phillies last year," Herndon said. "But I was concerned about making the team. I didn't want to get offered back to the Angels. Who wouldn't want to come to this organization?"

After the initial season, a team can option the Rule 5 player back to the minors, which is what the Phillies have done with Herndon.

Sometimes, they strike gold. Other times, it goes the other way.

The Phillies lost slugging prospect George Bell to Toronto in 1981. Bell went on to drive in more than a 1,000 runs.

"You never know what can happen with a Rule 5," Brewers outfield instructor John Shelby said. "But a team like the Phillies can afford to take chances like they do since they have had such good teams. If you're as strong as they are from 1 to 24, you can take a chance with the last roster spot."

Victorino was plucked from the Dodgers' organization. The Phillies paid the $50,000 Rule 5 fee, but offered Victorino back to L.A. for $25,000. The Dodgers didn't want him.

"It worked out really well for me," Victorino said. "I was thrilled to stay with the Phillies."

Bet on the versatile Martinez, who was obtained from the Nationals, to make it through the season with the Phillies.

"That would be good," Victorino said. "He's a talented ballplayer."

Rule what?

Wondering exactly what a Rule 5 player is? Relax, we got you covered.

A potential Rule 5 player is 19 or older. He has been with the same organization for at least four years, but is not protected (as part of the 40-man roster).

A Rule 5 player must last the whole season with the organization or be offered back to his original team.

Adoptions From The Heart®

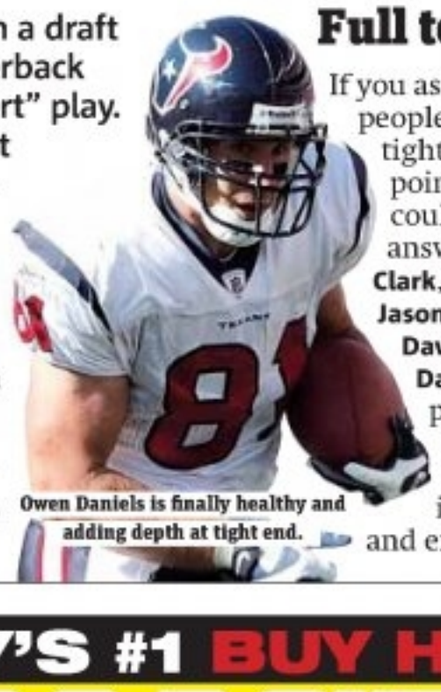
TONING YOUR TIGHT END

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

Waiting until deep in a draft to select your quarterback used to be the "expert" play. It's time to apply that theory to tight ends.

Back in the old days, Tony Gonzalez and Antonio Gates were the only true pass-catching tight ends. There was value in reaching to have one of them. But the position has evolved into a glamour spot, leaving us tons of options.



Owen Daniels is finally healthy and adding depth at tight end.

Full top tier

If you asked six different people who will lead tight ends in fantasy points this season, you could get six different answers. Gates, Dallas Clark, Jermichael Finley, Jason Witten, Vernon Davis and Owen Daniels all have elite potential. The important note is that this run starts in the fourth round and ends in the eighth.

Breakout candidates

Even if you miss out on those six guys, there is tons of upside left. Jimmy Graham is a major red zone threat for Drew Brees. Jared Cook is an athletic beast. Rob Gronkowski's role in New England will grow.

Viable veterans

The position is so deep, proven assets like Zach Miller, Chris Cooley and Dustin Keller are lasting until the final rounds. Make tight end your last priority.

NFL free agents

Free agency could open next week. So fantasy owners need to watch:

1. DeAngelo Williams, RB, CAR — If he stays, Jonathan Stewart is crippled. If he lands in Denver, Knowshon Moreno will be a third-down back.
2. Ahmad Bradshaw, RB, NYG — Are the Giants really willing to turn the backfield back over to Brandon Jacobs? The Dolphins figure to show interest.
